I support PC1 water elements: they're an important first step.

I support the objectives for Te Whanganui a Tara and Ta awarua o Porirua.

I support the Target Attribute States proposed for these catchments. (If you think they should be even better, say so)

I believe the inducement to do less on greenfield land and more on brownfield is good, is necessary to meet the objectives, and also helps us do better cities.

I believe the costs are important and our task is not to try and dodge them, push them back onto the environment, or kick the can down the road even further, but to problem-solve together how best we can resource doing water better.

I encourage councils to collectively resource enforcement, science, and complementary policy tools like education, industrial water plans, and community governance, including continued involvement of mana whenua and citizen water-care activity.
